

Vulcan Materials 16th Annual Funshoot for the Cancer Therapy Research Center at the University of Texas Health Science Center

More than 400 people turned out Saturday, Sept. 12 to raise funds for the Cancer Therapy & Research Center (CTRC) at The UT Health Science Center. The event was the 16th annual Funshoot, sponsored by Vulcan Materials' Southwest Division and held at the National Shooting Complex in northwest Bexar County.

The sporting-clay shooting competition is Vulcan's major annual charity event in Texas and employees went all out. They registered 70 teams from their clients and vendors. They solicited dozens of prizes to auction at the event. As an add-on fundraiser, employees had a "Funhike" that raised more than $4,000. Another group of employees made a quilt during their lunch breaks and it brought in $500 at the auction.

Over the 16-year history of the event, proceeds have surpassed $1.5 million. Funds assist the CTRC in its mission to conquer cancer through research, prevention and treatment.

